

If You Pay Less Than the Saxon "Six" Price Don't Expect to Get Saxon "Six" Quality

That headline tells the truth and nothing but the truth.

If you've got your mind on Saxon "Six" quality and your eye on some car that is selling for $100 or $200 less, you're in a bad fix.

You'll have to pass up one or the other.

And our advice is, "don't pass up quality for the sake of a little saving in the purchase price."

If you want a cheap car why don't you go the limit and get a real cheap one and save $400 or $500?

If you want a good car, a finely built, wonderful performing, smooth-running quality car, buy Saxon "Six".

Suppose you do pay $100 or $200 more for Saxon "Six" than for some other car.

You'll get it back many times over in the better service Saxon "Six" will give you.

And not only better service but longer service.

It's a quality light-six. It's honestly built without a bit of cheapness anywhere.

That's why we can't sell it for a cent less than its present price.

Ride just once in Saxon "Six". Then you'll know why it is worth more.

WEEKLY NEWS NOTES

(By County Agent Glenn S. Hensley.)

Farm Bureau to Demonstrate the Value of Orchard Spraying.

The following men are co-operating with the Farm Bureau in spraying their orchards this year: Charles Hopkins, Farmington; C. B. Scott, Farmington; J. R. Webb, Knob Lick; Ellis Jones, Hazel Run; T. Zapp, Bismarck; and C. A. Secor, Farmington.

These co-operators have agreed to prune and spray their orchards as recommended by the Farm Bureau and to keep complete records on the cost of their spraying. Two trees will be left not sprayed in each orchard and at gathering time, a meeting will be held in the orchard to demonstrate the effect and profit brought about by spraying properly. Demonstrations the last two years have shown conclusively that there is nothing which will give better returns on a farm than spraying and caring for the home orchard.

Mr. W. D. Styers, an old experienced man in the orchard business, recently made the statement that he did not consider it any more foolish to plant a crop of corn and not cultivate it, than to have an orchard and neglect to spray and care for it. This testimonial by Mr. Styers should surely be convincing that orchard spraying will pay.

Farm Bureau Furnishes Madison County Sixty Settings of Eggs.

St. Francois county has the reputation of being a county with lots of good poultry. This, possibly, is the reason why our neighbors from the south came here to locate eggs from pure bred stock for their poultry clubs. With the assistance of the Farm Bureau office, they secured 36 settings of Rhode Island Red eggs, 12 settings of Barrad Plymouth Rock eggs, 10 settings of Brown Leghorn eggs and 2 settings of White Wyandotte eggs. Numerous inquiries were made in the endeavor to locate these eggs from pure bred stock. A number of people said that they would be glad to furnish eggs but their chickens were not all pure. It seems that with the increasing demand for pure bred chickens, that farmers and poultrymen would get rid of their mixed chickens and breed only pure bred stock. It costs no more to raise them and there is certainly money to be made by handling the pure bred stock.

Fruit Sprays.

The Farm Bureau recommends the following spray calendar for apples:

What to Spray for	When to Spray	What to Use
1 Apple Scab Curculio Spring Canker Worm Apple Rust	When cluster buds are separated but before the blossoms open.	Lime sulphur 1 1-2 gal. to 50 gal. of water. 2 pounds of farsenate of lead paste or 1 pound of the dry form.

COUNTY SCHOOL NOTES

Mrs. Jessie Huff of the Oak Hill school has had her pupils to write letters to the County Superintendent in regard to the flag which was recently raised over their school. The letters are interesting and well written. One will be published in this column next week.

Gen McCain's discussion of slouchiness of mental attitude, bearing and grit is as follows:

"In addition to this physical disability and slouchiness in what might be termed the slouchiness of mental attitude. Many men fail to measure up to the requirements set for our officers' reserve because they have not been trained to appreciate the importance of accuracy in thinking. Too many schools are satisfied with an approximate answer to a question. Little or no incentive is given increased mental effort to co-ordinate one's ideas and present them clearly and unequivocally. Insistence upon decision in thought and expression must never be lost sight of. This requires eternal vigilance on the part of every teacher. It is next to impossible for military instructors to do much to counteract the negligence of schools in this regard. This again has cost many men their commissions at camp. Three months is too short a time in which to teach an incorrigible 'beater-about-the-bush' that there is but one way to answer a question oral or written, and that is positively, clearly, and accurately. The form of the oral answer in our schools should be made an important consideration of instruction."

"I have further noted at camp that even some of our better military schools have turned out products that while many of them may have the bearing of a soldier in ranks, yet their carriage is totally different as soon as they 'fall out.' Schools, military and nonmilitary, should place more insistence upon the bearing of pupils all the time. It should become a second nature with them to walk and carry themselves with the bearing of an officer and a gentleman. This again is a characteristic that can not be acquired in a short time, and when coupled with other disqualifying elements, has mitigated against the success of men in training camps."

"As a last important element that seems to me has been lacking in the moral and mental make-up of some of our students here is the characteristic of grit. Not that they should have proved cowardly in battle, necessarily, but some have exhibited a tendency to throw up the sponge upon the administration of a severe rebuke or criticism. Their 'feelings' have been hurt' and they resign. They have never been taught the true spirit of subordination. They are not ready for the rough edges of life. The true training school should endeavor to inculcate that indomitable spirit that enables one to get out of self, to keep one's eyes fixed upon the roughness of the path, to realize that one unable to rise above the hard knocks of discipline can not hope to face with equanimity the tremendous responsibilities of the officer under modern conditions of warfare. This ideal of grit belongs in the schoolroom as well as upon the campus."

J. CLYDE AKERS,
County Supt. of Schools.

DOUGHBOY ORATORY

Many picturesque stories have been brought back to America from the battlefields of France and Belgium about our doughboys. One of the best of them, typical of the boys themselves and of their ability to do the right thing at the right time, was told by Raymond D. Fosdick at the first winter meeting of the Southern Society in New York. Mr. Fosdick has been looking out for the morale of American soldiers since the beginning of the war. This is his story:

customers, and did not care who knew it. Why, gentlemen, their language would have blistered the skin of Satan himself.

"In poking about the ruins they discovered a French peasant family cowering in a very small cellar, where they had taken refuge from the retreating Germans. The family was almost starved and we found that the peasant woman's infant had died a short time before for lack of nourishment.

"Those tough doughboys drew off to a corner of the ruins, put their heads together, dug down into their pockets, contributed to a general fund, and then disappeared into the night. In the early morning they returned, bearing a barrel of flour for which they must have paid a fabulous sum, as well as a large supply of other articles of food and clothing.

"In some unexplained manner they had succeeded in obtaining a small white casket; and in the early gray light of a new day the body of the baby was tenderly buried in a grave the boys had dug. As the small mound of earth was heaped above the grave with gentle hands those five tough doughboys scattered some blood-red poppy blossoms upon it.

"The French mother, who had maintained a stoic calm throughout the night, poured forth her passionate gratitude to the boys, who understood not one solitary word of it. But when she stopped, the big red-headed corporal, instinctively realizing that there should be some response, mustered up every bit of French he knew, dug his toe into the earth and, as his four companions twirled their steel helmets uncomfortably, said simply: "Vive la France!"
